This map represents some of the geologic conditions relevant to extraction of quartz-rich sandstone. Viability of extraction is also dependent on many other factors, including detailed geologic conditions at individual sites, proximity to bulk transportation, current land ownership and use, market prices, regulatory requirements, and many others. This map should not to be used for site-specific decisions.